'Asiong' shoots down rivals in filmfest

By Marvin R. Cruz
Inquirer

THE GAMBITER movie "Mundo Mangrove: The Asiong Salonga Story" pulled the most number of awards, including Best Film, at the 37th Manila Movie Festival held at the Philippine International Convention Center on Wednesday night.

The film, about notorious gang leader Nicolas "Asiong" Salonga, also won the Best Director award for Tibay Aguilera, who was not around to receive his trophy.

Aguilera had protested the inclusion of his name in the film's credits and promotional materials. He said "Asiong" had been widely involved and received without his knowledge, therefore, it could not be attributed to him.

COMMENTARY

Rizal seemed harsh and unjust, it was an expected verdict since Spain was facing a difficult time in quelling the revolution in Cuba and could ill afford another rebellion in her colony in the Orient.

The easy way out, the Spanish colonial authorities must have perceived, was to stuff out swiftly the leading voice of reform, and Rizal was the perfect fall guy to their accusations to hold him accountable, they even imprisoned him and mercilessly tortured him to implicate his younger brother.

It was a veritable open-and-shut case. Rizal inspired the revolution through his writings and the blueprint

AFP: We liberated 23 provinces from NPA

By Df Yap

IN A SOMETIME working declaration yesterday, the Armed Forces claimed to have "liberated" 23 provinces from the four-decade-old communist insurgency, which it said lost more than 300 guerrillas in 2011.

The military said its Internal Peace and Security Plan (IPSP), referred to as the "Bayerbans," had freed the provinces from the influence of the Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP), its armed wing, the New People's Army (NPA), and political arms, the National Democratic Front (NDF).

"The AFP through the IPSP Baybans, liberated 23 provinces from the CPP-NPA-NDF influence, with direct internal security operations turned over to their respective local government units," the military said.

The provinces are Aklan, Iloilo, Negros Occidental, Zamboanga, and

THE GRAFT charges filed on Wednesday against former President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo in the Sandiganbayan are bailiable, but this does not guarantee her freedom because she was earlier charged with electoral sabotage, a nonbailable offense, a spokesperson of the anti-graft court said yesterday.

Arroyo's latest criminal charges in the Sandiganbayan stemmed from the Office of the Ombudsman's finding that she had tampered and approved the signing of the controversial $320-million National Broadband Network (NBN) deal with China's ZTE Corp. in 2007 despite her knowledge of its irregularities.

Arroyo was also indicted for playing golf and having lunch with officials of ZTE when its proposal to undertake

Palace destroying objectivity-Joker

By Catly C. Tanasawa and Norman Boudreau

SEN. JOKER Arroyo fears that Malacañang, which is already searching for a replacement for Chief Justice Renato Corona, could bring about a public mindset that would defeat the objectivity and neutrality of the impending impeachment trial.

"What I lament is that while the Senate begins its deliberations, Malacañang does not let its flag stand the flag of the impeachment complaint. Now they're already looking for the replacement of the Chief Justice. Things like that," Arroyo said in phone interview with the Inquirer.

The Senator is scheduled to begin the impeachment of Corona in about three weeks.

Arroyo fears that Malacañang's move to find a replacement for Chief Justice Corona "would bring about a mindset that would affect the trial."

Arroyo, who was appointed president in the impeachment of former President Joseph Estrada more than a decade ago, is also an impeachment proponent who would see Corona's trial.

"What we should guard against is even the slightest perception that the impeachment process is being manipulated," he said.

Arroyo said the facilities in the Senate chambers where Corona's hearing, impeachment trial and decision, if there is one, will be held.

Arroyo said he would "trust" the determination of his colleagues in any objective manner.

The trial, explained, involved from the Senate's perspective at its January 2011.

The prime guarantee in the impeachment trial of Corona would not allow the Senate to act on the impeachment trial until the Senate has received enough evidence that would have supported the impeachment trial.

PH, DFA hurdled tests of 2011, says Del Rosario

By Jory E. Espinaldo

THE PHILIPPINES' adept response to the escalating status of high-import global events this year—from the Anti-Hijacking to the worldwide economic and debt crisis—has "underlined our resilience as a nation," according to Foreign Secretary Albert Del Rosario.

In a statement, Del Rosario yesterday noted that "the past year tested extraordinary challenges."

But, he said, "we remained steadfast, hopeful and optimistic with the resilience we gained."

"In the spirit of positive public service, the men and women of the Department of Foreign Affairs worked through the issues with dedication, commitment and fortitude. Looking back, we are how much we have achieved by being true to our duties and responsibilities," he stated.

Del Rosario expressed confidence that in 2012, the DFA would "do more, even better and reach beyond our group."

Regarding the agency's achievement a 12-page report on strong U.S. accomplishment this year.

The achievements, Del Rosario said, were "in accordance with the three pillars of Philippine foreign policy."

which are the protection and enhancement of national security, promotion and attainment of economic security, and protection of the rights and welfare of overseas Filipinos.

The foreign office's major accomplishments included the following:

- Initiated a 17 percent increase (from $25.4 million) in the Chinese administration's proposed appropriation for the Philippines (from $22.27 million this year to $24.45 million next year).

- Obtained an additional $22 million in coastal watch radar systems from Washington.

- Received more than $12.5 million in military and law enforcement assistance from China.

- Entered into a Framework Agreement with South Korea for the provision of $500 million in soft loans to finance the upgrading of the Coast Guard's information and communication systems.

- Proposed the concept of a Zone of Peace, Freedom, Friendship and Cooperation in the West Philippine Sea (South China Sea) among the six bordering countries—the Philippines, China, Taiwan, Vietnam, Malaysia and Brunei.

- Initiated new defense cooperation agreements with Israel, Italy, Spain and Vietnam.

- Completed for the election of Sen. Miriam Defensora

DEL ROSARIO

San Santiago to the International of Criminal Court.

- Coordinated President Aquino's official state visits to the United States, China and other countries.

- Promoted the government's tourism program, including a two-way, three-day, two-night airfare project between Manila and Beijing.

- Made cultural interventions toward realization of government-organized contracts, such as the WorldBank project with China, call on roll-off project with France, Laguna Lake Rehabilitation project with Singapore, and Project Suez 3 project with Germany.

- Coordinated hyper bonding for 14 business recovery development projects worth $1.5 billion.

- Released over $300.4 million for humanitarian and medical assistance of those that have OFWs in troubled third-world states.

- Coordinated with local and foreign law enforcement agencies in the arrest and prosecution of drug syndicates including OFWs.

- Picked for the release of over 60 Filipino workers held by foreign states.

Del Rosario, who reportedly said that "the foreign policy of the Aquino administration will be one of full engagement and transparency."

Entered to group

According to the DFA chief, "the three pillars will be strongly pursued under the present administration's agenda of sustained development and good governance."

"The Philippines will continue to reach beyond its group in economic diplomacy, in the provision of the Asian and Pacific of Philippine overseas, and strengthening national security," he emphasized.

The DFA will be more aggressive in engaging with our traditional economic and commercial partners in East Asia, North America and Europe, and new ones in South and Central Asia, South America, the Middle East and Africa. We will ensure that our economic diplomacy will be anchored in transparency and stable partners that create a domestic economic structure in foreign investment."

On top of stronger bilateral relations, Del Rosario said the DFA "will continue to pursue cooperation with multilateral partners," like the 16 member Asian Pacific

Asian Nations, APEC and United Nations agencies where most support on Philippine development goals.

Pursuing the rights and promoting the welfare of overseas Filipino workers will continue to be a strong pillar of the country's foreign policy, he said.

Magnitude of diaspora

The sheer magnitude of the Filipino diaspora presents a response and voluntary bilateral agreements, regional arrangements and international treaties affecting migrant workers," Del Rosario said.

On the promotion of national security, he pointed out that "it is the DFA's major concern to build a safe and secure country."

Nigeria bombings prompt delay in lifting of OFW ban

By Tina G. Santos

THE RECENT spate of bombings in Nigeria has prompted the Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) to hold its decision on recommendation to lift the employment ban on overseas Filipino workers (OFWs) to the Manila country.

Foreign Secretary Albert Del Rosario has asked Labor Secretary Rosendo Salazar to defer for 90 days the lifting of the ban, after 40 bodies linked to terrorism or of bombs in several churches in Nigeria on Christmas Eve which killed about 40 people.

"We are respecting the Department of Labor and Employment to put on hold our own recommendation to lift the employment ban in view of the present situation in Nigeria," said Del Rosario in a statement.

The decision imposed came a week after the DFA announced the lifting of the employment ban in Nigeria beginning Jan. 1 following improvements in the security situation in the Niger Delta. The report did not take into account the Christmas Eve bombings.

"The Philippines is concerned the security situation in Nigeria will remain unstable to allow us to again send Filipino workers there," Del Rosario said.

In recommending the lifting of the ban earlier, Del Rosario had said the DFA had reviewed the overall security situation in Nigeria and concluded that the insurgency in the Niger Delta was being properly addressed.

"The more kidnapping incidents have occurred and Nigeria has become a violent democracy with a changing economy. According to our ambassador in Nigeria, Simon Padolina, US$200 million in the oil, gas and construction industries are missing over OFWs," he had said.

OFW agency's boss sees writing on wall, starts packing

By Philip C. Tobias

WHILE there has been no official word from Manila, the head of the Philippine Overseas Employment Administration (POEA), Carlos Cae Jr., said he has started packing his things to prepare to leave his post.

Cae said yesterday, "I was informed verbally a few days ago by higher-ups at DOLE that they want to replace me... but I have not received anything from the DOLE side of the President."

"Whether I'm finally replaced or not, I continue to believe in and support the administration. I have no reason. I am not going. I continue to stay for the government as required," he said in an interview.

Interview at DOLE last week stated that Cae was on his way out, with Labor Undersecretary Hans Cardezo expected to replace him on Monday.

Cae and Labor Secretary Jejomar Binay declined to comment privately on Cae's departure from the POEA.

"I never as the pleasure of the President," Cae said. "I've already been here for nearly a year and I'm thankful for the opportunity given to me to serve our overseas Filipino workers."

Cae said he was not aware of the reason for his impending exit.

"I've learned a lot from the great staff and the cooperation of our stakeholders, we have been able to improve the processing of our OFWs here at the POEA," Cae said.

"When I arrived here, they would tell me that I had 7 p.m. this morning at our Bulid-Sungay (Bulid) and I'm only 2 p.m. but there are more only a few remaining people to be here," he said.

Cae said that there was also improvement in the deployment of OFWs this year compared to 2010.

"There's no time against me but whenever it is the decision of the higher-ups, I will comply. This has been a most cheerful time for me because I had fun in working the people," he said.

Cae said, Cae's assigned replacement, is an old hand at the POEA, having served as deputy administrator in charge of licensing and administration from 2006 to 2010.

President Aquino appointed him undersecretary for labor issues in September 2010. Among the cases he handled were the labor row at Philippine Airlines, which remained unresolved at this day.

Cae has also occupied various positions at DOLE, among them, as director of the Bureau of Labor Relations and Statistics, director of the National Commission and Mediation Board.

A lawyer and multiawarded writer, Cae has also served as coordinator of the Office of the Secretary of the House University-based Journal of International Law and Policy.

Mgm't change may solve labor row, says PAL union

By Philip C. Tadena and Paula G. Montemallo
 12:00 (CNS/PA) crew union of Philippine Airlines yesterday welcomed the possibility of a change in ownership of the flag carrier, saying that might finally put an end to the labor dispute in PAL.

 GARY TOWSE, PAL Employees Association (Palae) president, said they viewed the talks between PAL owner Cebu-based Star Media

Corp. with "positive optimism" as a "new means to open dialogue and solve the union's lingering labor dispute."
 The union said it would be able to take up all of present labor issues only by "opening the 2000 locked-out employees back."

"Being locked out since 2006, nearly seven years with pay," said Towsen, adding that 900 employees would be back to re-start the extended shutdown soon at least.

"As a legacy airline, PAL is about quality service—service that only comes from a quality work force. The new owners must therefore consider the stranded business revenue factor in setting negotiation talks," he said.

The union said PAL reduced heavy losses in the third and fourth quarters of this year after Palae members opposed the company's outsourcing commercialization plan by refusing to transfer to the service providers.

It said the Palae's protest on Sept. 27 forced the airline to scale down its operations for lack of skilled manpower in order to preserve and manage handling operations as well as safety and security.

Meanwhile it was the "total outsourcing plan that pushed forward the flight crew's decision as well as its reputation as customer confidence (and) growth of the airline by labor union, low quality service and safety concerns."

However, Palae supports local and international trade unions, the Church, the students, against socialist union groups, but has been a success in its largest campaign—of contributing to a significant reduction in PAL's total liabilities, union said.

On Dec. 31, the union's protest camp located at least at PNB's Flight Center and Learning Services building along MIA Road in Pasig City plans "to stay camp in Palae members make noise in morning, and peacefully greet the New Year with a call to end the labor row at PAL."

A "media rally" will also be prepared at the camp similar to "what Palae did during the 'No Sale of PAL to China' and 'No Christmas Eve'," he said.

"PAL is now really a national issue for Palae and the entire labor movement. In despite the arrests, we're fighting until we win. We remain hopeful and we thank everyone who stood with us for keeping us strong."

and called "thorough."
 Under the accord, local and international unions, PAL Corp. and Palae agreed that it was in better to post the "participants" in the airline's restructuring program, which may involve the sale of the airline.

PAL, too, said its operations were now back to normal as its third party contractors had local crew members that it needed, the company noted that it was flying at its full capacity as per its about 90 percent loss that it could sustainably.

Palae said this showed that PAL's outsourcing was a failure and should be abandoned.

Last month, PAL reported a net loss of $2.6 million in the third month-end ending beginning a reversal from a $2.6 million profit seven ago.

The cost of fuel, which accounts for about 40 percent of the company's operating expenses, is one of the major problems. The company expects to end the year with a loss of about $2.6 million.

Mindanaoans, very poor have highest hope

RESIDENTS of Mindanao and "very poor" Filipinos have highest hopes for the coming new year, a survey showed.

Results of the latest Pulse-Philippines (PFI) survey revealed that 60 percent of Filipinos in Mindanao will welcome the new year with hope, a 5 percentage-point jump from 2011.

But the numbers hardly changed in the Visayas at 56 percent from 57 percent last year, as Luzon area outside the metropolitan 55 percent from 54 percent, and in Metro Manila declined at 56 percent.

Among the "very poor" class 6, hope index new year rose to 60 percent from 59 percent, higher than last year's 60 percent and surpassing the previous high of 60 percent in 2002, 2003, 2004 and 2005.

At 60C while it hardly moved among the "middle" class D, up to 56 percent from 55 percent.

Almost none in 34 Filipinos and they would welcome the new year with hope unless they wish that, according to the latest PFI survey.

Results of the poll showed 55 percent of the respondents saying they were hopeful of the coming year while last year, they said they would face 2012 with less.

The latest figures of hope in Filipinos degenerated the second high 60 percent in 2003, and was slightly higher than last year's 60 percent.

And four about the new year in 2003, 2004 with the coming year has not, notably been at high levels, "the study pointed research materials said."

It was 62 percent in 2000 and 60 percent in 2002, prior to the current 55 percent in 2003. The number declined to 50 percent in 2001 and 44 percent in 2004.

It increased to 52 percent in 2005, 51 percent in 2006 and 2007 and 52 percent in 2008. The figure dropped again to 49 percent in 2009 and then rose to 53 percent last year.

The PFI survey also found that of the 64 percent who were looking at a better 2013 Christmas, 67 percent said they would face 2012 with hope. On the other hand, of the 11 percent who were looking forward to a bad Christmas, only 69 percent said they would face the new year with hope.

MASBATE MAYORS' LAMENT

New Year gunfire 'unavoidable'

By James C. Sullivan
Singapore Straits Times

MASBATE CITY—If there's any place that's crawling with New Year's Eve revelers, it could be Masbate where lawless revelers are expected to celebrate the new year with gunfire and fireworks.

At least three mayors of the province said they could do more to keep revelers out of the city but they were currently powerless to reduce the lawless revelers' activities.

"The [lawless] revelers are only a few miles away, at the end of the day, it all depends on the gun owners," said Mayor Isador Llanes of Masbate, one of the province's largest towns, 60 kilometers from Masbate City. There is a high incidence of gun-related crimes, according to a report from the Philippine Police Office.

In Iloilo town, 50 km from Masbate City, Mayor Raul Bantolero claimed that the municipal government was almost powerless against lawless revelers.

"We could not keep watch on everyone especially those who are in the villages. We have very few law enforcers," said Bantolero.

All he could do, he said, was to request barangay officials and police to discourage gun owners against lawless reveling.

Unfettered gun use poses an in Masbate and have been tagged as the main cause of murders and shootings that have put the unemployment and poverty in a bad light.

In Masbate City, Mayor Isador Llanes said all he could do was also get more gun owners, "especially those who are lawless," not to fire their weapons at New Year's Eve.

On Tuesday the entire police force of the province, under Isador Llanes, Masbate's 10th largest town, had been ordered to police the streets in the event of a New Year's Eve.

Causes of lawless reveling of guns have resulted in common injuries and loss of lives in the province, officials said on Wednesday.

Police also appeared to be reluctant to host the New Year's Eve celebration, but Masbate's police chief, Isador Llanes, said the police were not prepared to do so.

The celebration of New Year's Eve is expected to be the last busy reveling.

In Masbate City officials said they were preparing for a celebration that would last the entire night of the New Year's Eve.

The city, according to Mayor Isador Llanes, would start a celebration from 6 p.m. with light shows, entertainment programs and fireworks displays.

"People will party until the sun rises on Jan. 1," said the mayor. With a report by Danilo Torres, Singapore Straits Times

Clark under DOTC seen good for airport transfer

CLARK FREEPORT—The transfer of the Clark International Airport (CIA) from the Department of Transportation (DOTC) to the Department of Energy and Natural Resources (DENR) is seen as a good move for the long-delayed development of the Clark area.

Mayor Jose Llanes, CIA president and chief executive officer, said President Aquino's Executive Order No. 16, signed in 2004, the transfer of the CIA to the DENR.

"Since 1994, Clark has been one of the country's most national projects but the reality is that in the past decade of government has given attention to the transfer to the DENR," Llanes said.

He said it was to the credit of the DOTC that Clark secured 30 airfield developments with other countries that are now Clark's proprietary rights.

"We welcome DOTC taking a more aggressive role and development of the CIA," he said.

Representative Llanes, now president for airport management operations, said the transfer will "work parallel to the plan to transfer the CIA to Aquino International Airport to Clark if it is under DOTC."

"It is good for CIA," Llanes said.

In 2004, Mr. Aquino directed the transfer of CIA to the DOTC.

Reported by the Philippine Star, Clark is the largest airport in the country and is a major transfer point for the transfer of the CIA to the DOTC.

At the present time, the CIA is under the DOTC.

Created in 1990, the CIA is a subsidiary of the Clark Development Corp. (CDC) and was placed under the oversight of the Bureau of Civil Aviation and Aeronautics.

Authorities also intend to transfer the CIA and CDC to an independent agency to manage the airport's operations.

2 kids die as fire hits shop

By Joanne L. Andrade

A 10-YEAR-OLD girl and her younger brother died in each other's arms after they suffocated from billows of smoke caused by a fire which gutted their two-story house in Las Piñas City shortly after midnight yesterday.

The bodies of Krista Mae Bada and 7-year-old Marc Bada were recovered from the scene—which is surrounded by iron grills to keep intruders out—on the second floor of their house at 379 Leonardo Compadre, 2nd Street in Barangay Talin Uno.

Their mother, Melinda Bada, suffered first degree burns on the arms and face as she tried to save them by running back inside their burning home.

She was taken to Las Piñas City General Hospital for treatment.

Some five kilometers from the site of the Las Piñas City fire disaster and the station named at around 12:30 a.m. yesterday on the ground floor of the Bada's house which also serves as a cinderblock shop.

Each day, Bada and her children were sitting in their room on the second floor when the room was consumed by a loud fire coming from the shop.

She briefly went down to check on the status of the store and found her shop afire.

She told officers that she tried to put out the fire but her efforts proved futile and when she decided to run back up the stairs

RESEARCHERS are still not sure how much of the brain's language capabilities are housed in the left hemisphere. But a new study suggests that the right hemisphere may be more important than previously thought.

The study, published in the Journal of Neuroscience, found that the right hemisphere is more involved in the processing of complex, abstract language than the left hemisphere. The researchers used a series of tests to measure the ability of patients with damage to the left or right hemisphere to understand and produce language.

The results showed that patients with damage to the right hemisphere had more difficulty understanding and producing complex, abstract language than patients with damage to the left hemisphere. This suggests that the right hemisphere plays a more important role in the processing of complex, abstract language than previously thought.

The study also found that the right hemisphere is more involved in the processing of language that is emotionally charged or socially relevant. This suggests that the right hemisphere plays a more important role in the processing of language that is socially relevant than previously thought.

The researchers conclude that the right hemisphere is more involved in the processing of complex, abstract language and language that is emotionally charged or socially relevant. This suggests that the right hemisphere plays a more important role in the processing of language than previously thought.

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and energy expenditure (EE) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The subjects were 15 sedentary women, 30 to 45 years of age, who were randomly selected from a telephone directory. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and a training group. The control group consisted of 8 women who did not participate in any physical activity during the study. The training group consisted of 7 women who participated in a 10-week training program. The training program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes. The sessions were performed on a stationary bike at a heart rate of 150 to 160 beats per minute. The subjects were monitored for HR and EE during the training program. The results of the study showed that the training group had a significant increase in HR and EE compared to the control group. The HR of the training group increased from 140 to 155 beats per minute, and the EE increased from 1,800 to 2,200 kcal per day. The control group showed no significant change in HR or EE. The results of this study suggest that a 10-week training program can improve the cardiovascular fitness and energy expenditure of sedentary, middle-aged women.

They were interested in the effects of the center's treatment on the boys' social skills. The center's treatment was based on the idea that social skills are learned through practice. The boys were given a series of social skills training sessions. The authors found that the boys who received the treatment showed significant improvement in their social skills compared to the control group.

Toxin found in cooking oil in China

Beijing—Chinese authorities have announced that they have found a toxic substance in cooking oil sold in the country. The substance, called "yellow oil," is a byproduct of the refining process and is known to be harmful to health. The authorities have ordered a nationwide recall of the oil and are investigating the source of the contamination.

The authorities have also warned consumers to avoid buying or using cooking oil that has a yellowish tint or a strong, unpleasant odor.

The incident has raised concerns about the safety of food products in China and the effectiveness of government regulations.

The authorities have promised to take strict measures to prevent such incidents from recurring and to ensure the safety of the food supply.

US 5th Fleet won't let Iran stop ships

TEHRAN/DUBAI—The US Fifth Fleet on Wednesday said it would not allow any disruption of traffic in the Strait of Hormuz, after Iran threatened to stop ships moving through the world's most important oil route.

"Anyone who threatens to disrupt freedom of navigation in an international strait is clearly outside the community of nations; any disruption will not be tolerated," the Pentagon-based task force said in a statement.

Iran, an increasingly vocal foe of the United States, has threatened to stop ships moving through the Strait of Hormuz, a body of water separating Oman and Iran, which connects the Persian Gulf oil producers, including Saudi Arabia, with the Gulf of Oman and the Arabian Sea. At its narrowest point, it is 21 miles across.

The strait would be so much for the importance of the US Fifth Fleet which consists of 30-plus ships supported by combat aircraft, with 25,000 people aboard and another 1,000 ashore.

A spokesman for the Fifth Fleet said it "maintains a robust presence in the region to deter or counter destabilizing activities," without providing details. "The Strait of Hormuz is the world's most important oil chokepoint," the US Department of Energy said, about 40 percent of all traded oil leaves the Gulf region through the strategic waterway. Reuters

Chavez suspects US of giving cancer

CARACAS—Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez on Wednesday questioned whether the United States could be giving cancer to Latin American leaders, after Argentina's Cristina Kirchner was diagnosed with the disease.

"Would it be that strange if they had developed technology to induce cancer without anyone knowing about it?" Chavez asked, without offering any evidence that such technology existed.

He made the allegation against his arch foe in a speech in which he also expressed his "solidarity" with Kirchner, whose spokeswoman on Tuesday said the last time diagnosed with breast cancer and would undergo surgery next week.

"It's very difficult to explain at this point," Chavez said in a reference to national news broadcasts by state media.

From "with the law of probability, what has been happening to some of us in Latin America... it's strange, very strange," he said.

Kirchner earlier on Wednesday said she feared Chavez, who last month waged a personal feud against the cancer victim, was the first regional leader to call her to call for support.

Buenos Aires' President Dilma Rousseff, her predecessor Luis Inacio Lula da Silva and Paraguay's Fernando Lugo have all been diagnosed with cancer in recent years.

Rousseff and Lugo say they are cancer-free. Lula is undergoing treatment. AP

NOPT Kim Jong Un's son, Kim Jong Un, is seen inside the heavily armored body of his late father, Kim Jong Il.

Kim Jong Un declared Korea's supreme leader

PYONGYANG—Kim Jong Un was named supreme leader of North Korea's ruling party, military and the people during a ceremonial on Thursday for his father's death.

Kim Jong Un, 31, took over the leadership of his government. Kim Jong Il, 66, died last week in a dark overnight, amid speculation that he had been taken to a hospital at the Grand People's Study House overlooking Kim Il Sung Square, flanked by the top party and military officials and Kim Jong Il's youngest sister.

Hundreds of thousands packed the square in central Pyongyang, filling the place from the Grand People's Study to the Juche Tower for the second day of funeral ceremonies for the late leader.

Kim Jong Il, who led his 24 million people with absolute rule for 17 years, died of a heart attack on Dec. 17 at age 66, according to state media. He had taken power following the 1998 death of his father, North Korea's founder Kim Il Sung.

Soon after Kim Jong Il's death, speculation turned to his young son, who was revealed last year as his father's chosen successor.

Kim Jong Un, who is in his late 20s, serves as a vice chairman of the Central Military Commission of the ruling Workers' Party but has been overshadowed by a series of new officials in state media since his father's death. AP

14 killed in Syria despite monitors

BEIRUT—Syrian security forces killed 14 more civilians in Anti-Lebanon area on Thursday in what proved both sides of a mission to halt the regime's crackdown on dissent, a rights group said.

At least seven soldiers—four Lebanese and three Syrians—were also killed on Wednesday in separate clashes, the British-based Syrian Observatory for Human Rights said in a statement received by AFP.

A five-year-old man, among four civilians killed by the security forces in Hama, as the Anti-Lebanon area is a hotbed of opposition to the Assad regime.

The observer mission is part of an Arab League plan accepted last month by Syria after weeks of negotiations, which also calls for the armed forces to withdraw from the areas and the release of prisoners.

On Thursday, monitors were to use the northern province of Hama and Hama as well as Daraa border town, where no government protesters gathered in mid-2011, the head of the mission said.

They would also visit a bank point (center) around the capital Damascus, General Abdelmonem Al-Nasr said at that, a veteran Syrian military intelligence officer, said AFP on Wednesday. AP

"This 2012, I would like to try dating because I want to express my feelings, thoughts and feelings through conversations and work the world." —Matthew Teo, La Salle Greenfield

"The next year, I would like to try out being a volunteer for the disadvantaged. From my perspective, that has still to improve the standard of living for the 'hanging' people. Besides that, military will be a part of our curriculum next year, once I'm already third year. Lastly, it's one of the basic skills needed in our everyday lives. Having the basic training will, at the very least, help you and your family survive. Without it, we would all be struggling for help." —YVES Pineda, La Salle Greenfield

"This 2012, I want to try starting my own little business, which will hopefully give me the next few years. I want to open my own clothing store. I don't want to be a clerk in my life, so maybe 2012 will be the year to do just that." —Raymond Hui, La Salle Greenfield

"I would like to try yoga in 2012. Although it is not a sport, it is a way to release stress accumulated from a hectic workday. Yoga also improves my overall physical condition, which will be a great asset in PE. We learned that yoga provides positive psychology. This means that in addition to its physical advantages, there are also mental benefits, such as the development of an individual's personality discipline and 'inner consciousness'." —Raymond Hui, La Salle Greenfield

"I'm too young for car driving so I'll probably try golfing." —Raymond Hui, La Salle Greenfield

Students share their resolutions, prayers and fervent hopes for 2012

By Kara Nial Gueguen
Student journalist,
Ateneo de Manila University

AS THE NEW YEAR approaches, we turn behind the trees and the branches of 2011. It has been both a winning and a difficult year for our nation. Among the many highlights of 2011, we, being a handful of students, have grown our way of thinking despite the recession affecting the life and economy. We experienced the birth of the second half-century with all the promise and challenges that event brought.

The resumption of peace talks between the government and the MILF and the CPP-NDFP. The recent typhoon "Sendong" that took over a thousand lives and left over a thousand missing in Northern Mindanao, making it the worst storm in the globe in 2011.

A new year is a gift—it makes, usually, the people who live here, to start afresh and to begin hope among those who may seem lost. May we all

Less greed and self-centeredness, a healthier lifestyle and better academic pursuits, strength for the victims of typhoon 'Sendong,' and a promise to make someone smile every single day remember that we should not only look forward to the coming year for our own sake, but we need to make each day count for the people around us. How are several students who share their resolutions, prayers and hopes for 2012.

"I pray for people not to be greedy and self-centered. In our worldly pursuits, I wish for people to look beyond, to see the bigger picture and to recognize that what they do affects the people around them. Typhoon Sendong caused so much damage. Illegal logging is one of the reasons that Sendong was powerful in the affected areas. I wish for people to take responsibility for their actions. I hope that this year will not be forgotten, but will serve as a reminder of what needs to be done. With dignity. "I hope the victims of typhoon Sendong will have closure and live a better life than when they have rights now. I hope they will be reunited with everyone they have lost, or at least will have the chance to bury their dead loved ones with dignity. I hope PE.

When done right, New Year's resolutions can be a way to expand your horizons and give you something more to look forward to than just jumping to become better.

IM A PRESENT convert to the "School of Insultation." As a kid, the only list I made during November was my list for Santa Claus, whom I figured wasn't real when I realized we didn't have a chimney at home.

I tried machines in grade school, passing stuff like "boy stationery" on my bus, which of course got taken off as soon as I went to the nearest bookstore. To my seven-year-old self, bookstores were something that adults did, along with having boyfriends or girlfriends, and going to work.

True enough, I started thinking about New Year's resolutions in college, where I turned into a semblance of an adult. At last, my resolutions were all in my head.

and were indicative of my previous—422 higher grades, and those books, with these marks. Two years ago, I started writing them down on my platoon, and most of them seemed to come straight from my mouth, like “keep early” or “we have just lost” instead of which were the words.

Last year, I made an exhaustive list, which I kept in my wallet, and which ranged from the practical—"Get a pair of white pants"—to the handy—"Read Twelve" after waking up, every morning." I ended up completing less than half of that year's list. I did, however, get two pairs of white pants.

What I've found is that, if you decide to join the world in making this post-Christmas list, there are a couple of things you might want to keep in mind, so it becomes more of a to-do list, and less of a one-way slide to frenzy and madness. When done right, New Year's resolutions can be a way to expand your horizons and give you something as quick as a wink, jumping in to save the day.

1. Synsphyronyx niger maculicornis. A relative once told me she keeps her mudcrabs in a room, as a promise to herself. A friend tells them down to a notebook she carries around. Others put them in glasses, or even them on their backs.

However, once you decide to commit it to memory, make sure you can recall your resolutions easily. It reminds you of what you want to accomplish, makes it easier to stick to and easier to share, so you can link up with friends who have common goals and get the support you need. It's a simple way to make sure you don't leave your resolutions in the dust.

Between practical and exciting: It takes a balance. When you're going to make 123,000 minutes count, it's odd how people start measuring their life in a rush. Here, we're not Adam Carolla in "Click."

Make sure you strike a balance between the practical and the exciting. It's good to have something relatively easy (like going to a city with lots of things to do) and something difficult (like getting on a plane to, or getting over your fear of heights) on your list. The fulfillment you get with every goal you accomplish will make you more eager and more ready to take on the rest of your resolutions. Once you realize that you can keep these resolutions, you might just stop a top-and-bottom workout.

2. Clash at a distance. Resolutions are like fireworks—every once in a while, you need to make a little “boom” in your life. Think of resolutions as a way to shake up your year, and not just something you have to willy through, like taxes at the last leg of a workout. If you give yourself enough space between resolutions, not only do you ensure that you have everything you need to get it done, but you can also ensure that you're in it 100 percent.

• Visit a life party. Your cat should have some fun at least once during your thought journey. You could never do Skiplife, Fluffie a swim during Thanksgiving. Traditional New Year's Eve, March. Play your favorite video game at the most difficult level. Try your best to sing. Going wild lets you discover a part of yourself you never thought was there, so one you know was just trying to get out. As long as it won't cause you a day in jail, so

3. It's for you. Your New Year's resolutions aren't the grocery list, a to-do list, or a collection of your parents' favorites/friends' favorite things to remind you. Every resolution is an appeal unto you to stop enjoying dinner, eating "you" as you eat, right now. It's an opportunity to take care of yourself. So when you're making that list, check it twice and see if you've got your best interests in mind. If it sounds like somebody else's best, well, it's theirs to lose.

Now, New Year's resolutions don't have to be as painful as getting your teeth pulled out. On it right, and those resolutions can be the key to seeing the world like never before, making new friends and making sure the joy and excitement you feel will stay with you throughout the year. Happy resolution!

efforts in helping the people of ODA, Eigan and Daegu, like the New Year being sent to among Filipinos. May the country continue to show through the coming year. May every one bring a smile to the face of the people of ODA, Eigan and Daegu. All for God's greater glory!"—Eliana, President, Xavier University, Cagayan de Oro.

"I really look forward with anticipation to creating new moments and new memories with the people from the past, those in the present and the ones I hope you'll meet. I also want to look at the world from a new perspective and to find ways to put a little of myself in it. I will challenge myself to make someone smile every single day. It's one of the simplest yet most precious things I can do, since I can only give something of myself with sincerity. I will treasure not just the ones and the last days of the past, but most importantly, the days in between." —JENNIFER FINCHAM, 1977

"I wish to focus what is really important to me. I want to live out an adage from the book The Little Prince—to be able to give importance to the little things that sometimes may seem invisible to the eye. I also want to push myself to the limit and expand my business and diversify the products I sell. I will try my best to be more patient, nicer and kinder to people, even to those I just met." —Jessiel Rae, Mamas de Manila (Facebook)

McDonald's in San Francisco

30 YEARS AND COUNTING:

McDonald's continues to bring happiness to Filipinos all over the country

Three pages 11

And this very look is one that has begun to spread throughout the country. Since September, McDonald's has already renewed 17 stores and have built 22 new stores employing modern design concepts all over the Philippines.

James says that McDonald's modern designs both take into consideration its aesthetic values as well as its functional purposes.

"We always have the convenience of our customers in mind when we design our stores as well as the relevance of each and every element that we put into it," he explains.

Jumping off from the designs of the contemporary stores at McDonald's Modern Classic Square, Greenfield, South Avenue, and Quezon Avenue, the newly built and newly renovated stores blend of the sleek and modern look with unique elements that set McDonald's apart from the rest.

James adds that in its new design concepts, McDonald's has divided the stores into different zones that would fit the needs of all types of customers.

"We have zones for all commercial zones to cater to groups of people like business or a group of friends who they can sit and dine together while having hearty laughs or intimate conversations. There are also zones where you can sit with a friend or a loved one or you can dine solo. The lifestyle zones, meanwhile, have soft and plush seating so customers can enjoy coffee in a more relaxing and soothing atmosphere," he says.

In addition, "We understand our customers, and our designs are made with a specific focus on their needs. It is not all about aesthetics, and we have to balance the way we design and put in elements in our stores," he explains.

James says that store renovations is a never-ending cycle as McDonald's constant quest is not only to provide the best and high-quality food but also to make sure that the place where the customers run is as enjoyable and convenient place to go to.

The renovation of stores and the building of new stores with the modern designs have part of the long-term design of the company which also included building 100 stores by 2015.

"McDonald's has always been a pioneer in the quality service and customer 'experience' shared across. When we do one thing, the rest follows. That's what we do differently in this, we are focused, and our focus for doing our design is consistent—it is for the customers."

'Mom's my idol'

Gabby Concepcion's daughter, Gabrielle Marie (Garie), says her mother Grace Ibuna is also her best friend and mentor

By Maribel B. Cruz

YOUNG singer Gabrielle Marie "Garie" Concepcion considers her mom her best friend, mentor and idol. She tells Living Stars: "I look up to her. It couldn't be any more away to me, but she's my idol."

Garie's parents, businessman Grace Ibuna and actress Gabby Concepcion, broke up shortly after she was born.

Now that she's 23 herself, Garie says she tells her mom everything, even her first heartbreak. "We're very close... We go to the park together, sleep together or just hang out to her room and talk."

This explains why her mom is also a major influence on Garie's fashion sense. "I'm a fan (obsessed)," she admits. "My mom tells me what to wear, what to wear, because we have fashion magazines together."

Garie recently released her self-titled debut album, Unleashed, by Star Records, with "Mabini Lang Taya" as lead single.

Bags

The black patent leather purse from Chanel is my favorite. It has a classic design and is actually my mom's, but she doesn't realize she bags. I like my bags to be practical.

We were in Hong Kong early this year when mom brought my very first Longchamp (in pink). The new Tote Bag (chick bag) are nice for going out with friends. Bags don't have to be pricey. What's good about handbags is that they last long. I got handbags from mom that she said are very good quality.

Eyewear

My very first shades were from Ray-Ban, also a gift from mom. The Chanel was a gift from my younger sister Raffy.

Scents

I collect scents. Sometimes my mom sends me empty bottles and signs me to throw it away. I always get inspiration scents from even the bottles. I love them all but these are my top 3: Stella McCartney's In Two Words, Innocent's Innocent and L'Oréal Paris.

I like these three scents because they last long. They stay in enough to last the

BREAKING BARRIERS AND CREATING OPPORTUNITIES

The New Year is a kind of new beginning — a chance to start on new endeavors, an opportunity to continue plans that were put on hold. While most people see the New Year as full of opportunities, however, there is a few of us who see these opportunities as challenges. It may seem like a pessimistic mindset at first, but the reality is, we're probably been thinking about these plans for quite some time already. It's impossible to have negatively come up with them only during the holiday season. You've probably thought about learning a new sport after seeing it on TV. You've probably thought about changing your room when you see for rent you call your stuff. And the thought of going to the gym has surely been floating in the back of your intricate past couple of years already.

The fact is, these resolutions aren't new stuff. The reason they remain as such is because we just keep on waiting for a reason to push through. We always let obstacles, concerns, and limitations get in the way. For us, we wait for the next big occasion, when that resolution again, and we aren't able to truly do it, when we should have been more so. Challenging. You haven't pushed that new sport because you thought you'd be too tired to practice after work. You've never changed your room because you keep on thinking about the other friends you have to come every weekend. You never watched the gym because you thought it was boring on the long run. But just always let ourselves get convinced and limited. The only way to get the things on the New Year's resolutions because with the New Year, we need to forget these barriers. It's time to let new ideas through, so we can do it really, and never wonder we don't feel like these resolutions again.

With Globe Prepaid SuperUnliAllTXT25, however, you can really forget all these barriers, and you won't ever have to wait every New Year. You can really push forward any time of the year with the offer's unlimited texts to all networks. So there's really no need to worry about coming out of your shell and being your entire barabara a happy New Year event if they're on your mind already. And because it's unlimited, now you can really step up, reach out, and get to know your crush more by texting with her all day. The offer also comes with an inclusion of calls to Globe and TM, so you can give your love in the promise a call and really tell your resolution of being her for you New Year. And, with the free one hour of mobile internet, there's no stopping you from posting a "Happy New Year" on Facebook and to your longest best friend who's always abroad.

The New Year is about breaking barriers and creating opportunities. With Globe Prepaid SuperUnliAllTXT25, there's nothing stopping you from fulfilling that New Year's resolution. In fact, it doesn't even have to be in the 1st or 14th of the New Year. Stay up, Break free. So long may go.

GLOBE SUBSCRIBERS ENJOY REGULAR PROMOS DURING HOLIDAY SEASON

Globe subscribers continue to enjoy regular promos during the holiday season despite the current surge of calls and text messages during the season.

"Our existing 100 and 1000 promo call numbers is to be available this holiday season to allow our subscribers to reach their loved ones during the New Year's season. We have been able to do this," said Mr. Fido B. Cordero, Head for Corporate and Legal Services Group of Globe. "The Globe network is really in service to our subscribers right now because we understand that customers need to be very responsive to our customers during this time. Our technical support and also our 24-hour 24/7 to ensure that our customers always get reliable service."

Globe Prepaid subscribers will continue to enjoy additional services including mobile and service calls, and mobile internet offers as part of their existing plan or part of My Super Plan and its suite of services. Family Connect, Call Back Service, and Local Premiums.

On the other hand, prepaid subscribers can avail of any of various unlimited call and text offers and discounted rates on services such as Lingo and from Globe's Call 24/7 which are available to subscribers during the entire holiday season. The subscribers who are not covered from a variety of promos available to them such as My Super Plan, a 1000 call and text offer which gives subscribers 1000 call minutes for all networks and 10 minutes of calls to Globe's 24/7 and discounted rates on all other services. TM 24/7 is available at P 0.15 per minute.

For subscribers who need to get in touch with their families and friends abroad, they can choose to register to Globe 100 Super Calls, where they can enjoy the most affordable international call rates at P 0.15 per minute for calls to the United States (including Hawaii), United Kingdom, Australia, Canada, Hong Kong, New Zealand, China, South Korea, Thailand, Taiwan, Australia, and European Union. Other destinations are charged an alternative rate of P 0.15 per minute.

Other international services include Globe SuperCall, where subscribers can enjoy unlimited international calls to over 100 destinations worldwide and Globe 1000 Text, which has the lowest per-minute 100 call rate of 1000 to various destinations, including Saudi Arabia, UAE, Kuwait, and Bahrain. Globe 1000 Text is available on 1000 minutes and unlimited minutes nationwide.

Globe subscribers can discount their holiday charges through the company's portfolio of broadband and mobile data services. Globe SuperSurf 10 provides broadband users unlimited access to internet surfing, where they can go as far as they want through various social networking sites. For prepaid users who would like to pay their mobile phone bills before the 15th of the next month and thereby, they can subscribe to the new and improved Globe PowerSurf, where they can use up to P100 free-of-charge 1000 of mobile internet for 30 days. Plan with the PowerSurf 100, subscribers will also pay lightest Plan P100, APTN for 1 hour or 2000 for the entire day, which includes unlimited for prepaid subscribers. For 1000, it is able to have a generous information.

For Globe and TM subscribers who have not yet agreed to use emergency services before Christmas, they should still do so in order for them to be able to New Year's Day greetings ahead of time. This time, it is possible to pay for Globe subscribers to mobile internet is a specific promo without having to subscribe to any other service, as they have to do so to be able to use their mobile phones," added Cordero.
